WOMAN'S WEAPONS. When woman by the sterner sex
Is thwarted of her will;
The brute's unfeeling heart to vex
She has one method still.
To all his arguments and laws
She has one safe reply;
To fill his statute book with flaws
She only needs—a cry.

Good-bye to reason and to right
When woman's tears o'erflow;
The man declines th' unequal ught
And owns his overthrow.
If right and reason perish, both,
He lets them with a sigh,
And woman conquers, nothing loth
And conquers by—a cry.

Ant conquest by—a cry.

But woe is me, that I should see
A clever ruling man.
The leader of the ministry,
Adopt the woman's plan.
When overpowering bands oppose
He sinks his bearing high,
And woman-like to meet his foes,
Has nothing but—a cry.

Ther waz among our people a feelin uv distrust at this idea uv takin up ez our candidate a man who, to say the least, waz the bloodiest Ablishniat who ever cust the country, and I coodent altogether blame em. Ez Deekin Pogram remarkt to me at the very last conversashen we had but one, "I kin possibly go Chase, but will it end there? "Spozin Butler shood boit Grant, must we put him on for Vice President? Have I got to support Chase and Butler or Chase and Sumner? Forbidit, Hevin."

I therefore went on to Washington to interview with Chase.

The Chevi Justia reseaved me corfelly. When he found I wuz from Kentucky he remarked that he waz delited that I came when he wuz orf the bench, ez he wood have felt it his dooly to hev adjourned court to hev the pleasure uv an interview, but he reely disliked to interfere with public bizness.

"Now, sir," sed he, "I am ready to the proper state of the president of the party to see the devices resorted to secure to each one his own appointment. The plan adopted was that the President should appoint one from each township as a committee, whose duty it should be to select five from his township, including himself as one of the number. It would seem from the next businesss in order that they had heretofore levied a tax on each township for the purpose of erecting a wigwam to hold their State Convention in, and for other purposes. The committee from each township was called upon to report the amount collected, and from their report I learned the amount assessed ranged appreciashen uv you, but them some slite differences of opinion upon matters uv public policy wich prevented it. But they alluz loved yoo, and they rejoice that ther is a prospect now that these differences may be smoothed down, so that yoo may rush into the embrace uv Kentucky. May I ask yoo to give me yoor views upon the question uv Afritkin slavery?

"Willinly, willinly, and bear in mind that I shel speek with the utmost frank, nls and plainness. Treasurer, it should be paid to him. He was met with the argument that he was Treasurer for another purpose, and therefore he had no right to have the use of this fund. It was decided to pay it to the building committee. The delegates having been appointed, the President was called upon to make a speech, and believing he was master of the situation, he responded with all the confidence of a Cleero or a Demosthenes, and after pouring out his "seven vials of wrath" upon the Radicals for their enslavement of the white race and freeing the negro; for their disfranchisement of the Rebels and permitting the negroes of the South to vote; for their paying the bondholders in coin, and the poor soldiers, widows and orphans in greenbacks; for their not permitting the South representation, and then passing the bills which did admit them over the President's veto. He then made the bold assertion that unless this order of things was removed that he was in favor of repudiating the whole debt, which assertion brought forth a hearty cheer from the Convention. When Mr. Johnson took his seat, Mr. B. F. Martin arose and said in substance, as Mr. Johnson had showed himself in his remarks, in tall sympathy with the party, he moved that the Mr. Johnson be made a delegate and followed in the wake of Mr. Johnson but more cautiously on repudiation but in substance the same. He commenced by saying the slaveholder and the Democratic party were the true friends and benefactors of the negro, that he had tested the generosity of the radicals here in proposing to build a church and school house for the blacks, and they refused to assist. He was careful not to give their reasons.

during the month, and other items, which he condenses into one and hands to the clerk, who reads its to the Board. The report is then filed, and that is an end of it. I don't see where either the schools or the public are in any way benefitted by this; but if they are, the Clerk of the Board could perform this part at a small increase of salary. The next duty of the gentleman is to alt a little while in the office and enter in a report book just what he pleases to put into it, and come out of, the mouths of those who can't or wont spell the word "necessary" in their children's excuses. Another important part of the gentleman's duty last year was the taking up of a good deal of time in the hot days of 1887 furnishing himself with a report of the salaries of all the Superintendents of the large cities, for the purpose of inducing the Board to increasing his own salary, and as I was so unfortunate as to vote the lowest figure I suppose Mr. Mc. reserved the present dish for me. I deny that the Superintendent's visits to the schools are of any benefit to the scholars. I reassert my statement in connection with Dr. Baird before the board, and will try to prove it in my next communication.
